

Stick Your Nose Into Your Own Business

Unless you vote or become a lobbyist there isn't much you can do about the government spending - and if you doubt me, check out the Trillion Dollar Perspective example. What you can do is one hell of a lot about is your own spending habits and controlling your money and trying to secure a firm financial footing for today and slowly begin to build your dollars a little at a time so that you can have some kind of retirement.

Them: Oh, those government people – those bailouts – that stimulus package –those unreliable people with our money. Why can't they learn to control it? Come on people – get a grip – quit wasting our tax dollars – you are supposed to be taking care with my money – putting it back for my retirement.

And Now the Coin Toss

Us: Oh, those people in charge of their personal finances – those consolidation loans – that extended credit on their credit cards - those unreliable people with our money. Why can't they learn to control it? Come on – get a grip – look in the mirror - you are supposed to be taking care with my money - putting it back for my retirement.

Remember, you were the one saying our government doesn't handle their money very well... what do you think they are doing with YOUR retirement money? The social security fund probably isn't going to be there when you retire. Once again, you are it. It's up to you and only you...no one else cares about your retirement, no one else cares if you reach retirement penniless or with a fortune...the only person that can determine that is you. You gotta hear the POP!!! Pull your head out of where ever it has been about your money and begin studying the one and only thing that can secure you a nice financial future with your money. It's going to take an investment of time on your part, but you have to do it if you want to be successful with your money. Make this your self appointed college class that you really need to ace.

Business money mantra for Cheapest CEO in America

“We operate everyday as if we are losing money” –

Personal money mantra for one of my brokest clients after the third meeting of organizing his finances – his response to me when I quoted Cheapest CEO quote to him

“Gosh, we've been operating everyday as if we were makin' money like a rock star”

What's your money mantra? Success or Failure – Trying or Not Trying? If you don't have a black balance in your check book, money in your savings account, religiously putting money into your retirement account each month, then quit wasting your energy on things you can do absolutely nothing about –like - the government spending. Put your energies into your own world of finances where it will do you the most good for your financial future – What I'm trying to say is “Stick your nose into your own business.”
